THE DOLLAR ARGUMENT

Osborne J. Yellott Points Out Its Fallacy.

The Two Great Conflicting Principles of the Two Great Parties-Republicans Stand for the Theory of Imperialism, While the Democrats Stand for Rights of the Individual

BALTIMORE, Oct. 29 .- Osborne I. Yellott, a prominent member of the Baltimore county bar, has written a strong letter to the Honest-Money Democratic League of Maryland, stating his reasons for supporting Mr. Bryan in the present campaign. Mr. Yellott goes deeply into the subject, to which he has evidently given much thought. In the course of his letter he

"In the first place, I am a Democrat Before casting my first vote I carefully studied the histories of the two great parties. A hundred years ago Jefferson ex-pounded the great truths of a Government pounced the great truths of a covernment founded upon principles of humarity, nev-er losing sight of the individual, his idea being the fundamental idea or principle of the Democratic party.

"Hamilton, on the contrary, saw visions in 1800.

"Thus, believing that Jefferson was right in 1800 and Hamilton wrong, I therefore believed that the Democratic party was right in 1890 and the Republican party "Moreover, the history of nearly a century of our National Government made me believe that the great distinction to which I have referred would be maintained throughout the country and consequently throughout my career as a voter. For that throughout my career as a voter. For that reason I became a Democrat in 1899, for that reason I am a Democrat today and for that reason I shall remain a Democrat to my life's end if it please my party to maintain the principles of equality of mankind as set forth in the Declaration of Independence and expounded by

Your desertion of the Demo-cratic party is an assertion that the Democratic party is wrong. Thus you are Journal of party is wrong. Thus you are about to vote for a party whose principles.

"The Constitution of our country con-The Constitution of our country con-tains the implied guarantee of certain human rights, which rights are declared to be equal among men, among them be-ing life, liberty, and the pursuit of happi-ness. The recognition of all these rights and of the equality of these rights of pends upon the attitude of society toward the man. To me the recognition and pro-tection of these rights should be the ulti-mate aim of a republican form of Govern-ment. In fact, I believe I have read something to that effect in an ancient and long-forgotten document called the 'Dec laration of Independence.

"To your organization the ultimate aim of mankind and of government would seem to lie in procuring the dollar and then preserving its value. From a purely material standpoint you are in a measure right, but only in a measure. The dollar is with many of us an end in itself. Life s given us by our Creator, liberty is ours for the present and the immediate future and the pursuit of the dollar, while not always a pursuit of happiness, is the pur-suit of that which is commonly conceded to insure happiness. Having secured the dollar we are naturally all desirous that it shall not depreciate in value while we

"But you lose sight of the fact that the value of the dollar, is, after all, a matter of relation. I am wealthy if I have more money than my neighbor. I am prosperous if I am making more money than is necessary to pay the expenses of living for myself and family. But if, on the contrary, my neighbor has infinitely more money than I have, then I am not wealthy; and if the cost of living is se far increased that my earnings no longer suffice to pay my living expenses, then I am not prosper-ous. These facts are matters of natural law which legislation cannot alter, and I merely refer to them to show that the value of the dollar is, after all, relative, and not, as you would strive to have it, fixed and immutable.

The point with which I would impress you is simply this: If a Government be conducted absolutely without regard to the equal rights of mankind, and so that wealth s distributed among individuals in unequal

On the contrary, if wealth be distributed in proportion to the weath be distributed in proportion to the labor expended in earning it, then the intrinsic value of the dollar matters not again, since the man who receives fair wages for his own labor can then always buy the labor of others at fair rates. But, you argue, we must see that the debtor does not pay his debts in a deprated currency, and we must, for that is son, maintain the parity of the dollar. ere again you are reckoning without re-ard to natural laws.

"Four years ago I had cceasion to loan a certain sum of money on real estate in Baltimore county. A few weeks ago that oan was repaid, the borrower having ne gotiated a larger loan with another par-ty. Today prices are at least 15 per cen-bigher than they were four years ago. In other words, the dollar which my debtor repaid me will buy in the market today only 85 cents of what it would have bought four years ago when I lent it to him. He has paid his debt with a dellar which is worth less than the dollar which he borrowed. But I do not call him a dis-nonest debtor. While there is an oppor-unity here for an argument on the 85-cent dollar, I will not avail myself of it, my point being merely to show the absolute futility of efforts to maintain the parity of the dollar on the assumption of any intrinsic value and even under the most favorable legislation.

"From these facts and a close study of natural laws and the financial history of our country I am forced to the conclusion that in making the maintenance value of the dollar the great aim of government your organization is engaged in that fruitless chase of the will-o'-the-wisp which has always stood as the synonym of futility

"When a 'Gold Democrat' rises before an audience of workingmen and tells them that he will cancel an order for millions of dellars in the products of their labor unless they vote as he wishes them to vote he is using an argument which would be scorned instead of applauded by the workngmen did they not realize that they are ndeed the slaves of their employers; that nenesforth their diet must be the crumbs which fall from their masters' tables, and that they must vote to load their masters' tables so heavily that more crumbs will necessarily fall. Such an argument, if effective, sounds the deathknell of the political independence of the American laboring man and makes us all tremble for the future of our children.

A BID FOR CATHOLIC VOTES.

Republicans Send Out Political Sec tarian Circular.

A circular emanating from Republican sources, written by a "W. T. Redmond," pretending to be an analysis of the Philippine question with reference to the ippine question with reference to the Catholic interests in the islands, is being sent all over the country to Catholics with the hope of making votes for McKibley.

The circular speaks of the danger of the Filipinos asselling the friars in the islands and of the necessity of retaining the ands and of the necessity of retaining the sovereignty of the United States there in order to protect their lives and property. One portion is as follows:

"If the ignorant Fillpinos cannot think it possible that the United States desires only instance." only justice, free from any sectarian bias, or if they cannot perceive how, in a

They have not been accustomed to such rule and must be educated into an understanding and appreciation of it."

Mr. Redmond goes on to speak of the danger to church interests and accuses Aguinaldo of having started a revolutionary provement against the frairs into which ry movement against the friars, into which other forces at work.

For instance, the anti-Chinese cry, which appeals powerfully to Californians, is raised again. This is largely because of the recent ruling of United States Dispet the friars, and the Catholic Church, as the true large in the control of the control of the recent ruling of United States Dispet the friars, and the Catholic Church, as the true beneficiary or party in interest be-hind the friars, would be despoiled of what mind the friars, would be despoiled of what should rightfully belong to it.

This document has been widely disseminated for campaign purposes.

A Catholic priest in discussing the circular, said:

"The man who wrote that Redmond circular is as ignorant of the true feelings of an American Catholic as he is impudent in assuming that they are bound to trample under their feet all loyalty to their country whenever the interests of their coreligionists are in question. This is the vulgar imputation that makes the startthat subject.

The saddest argument that makes ing point of all anti-Catholic controversy, bughtful men oppose McKinley is the What do I or any other Catholic care about vulgar imputation that makes the startthe fortunes of the Philippine friars if the United States is unconstitutionally on Philippine territory? That is the only and the very simple question involved in the case. About it there may be an honest difference of opinion. Have we any right to be there at all, the Spanish war being a thing of the past?
"It's likely that very many Catholics are of the opinion that we have. I, in common with many others, think that common with many others, think that consistently with our past history, with the teachings of the men who made our country, with our fidelity to the Constitution, we have no right to be there at all. But with all this the question of religion has absolutely nothing to do, and no American Catholic is called upon to concern himself about the situation other-wise than to feel a natural regret that certain of his coreligionists find them-selves between the devil and the deep sea.

"It is not the first time in history that the same spectacle has been afforced, and I do not recall that the United States Government felt called upon to interfere in behalf of persecuted monks and nuns.

"One thing is plain to my mind: Having no business there, we are bound by loyalno business there, we are bound by loyarity to our past to recede as quickly as possible from a false position. If Mr. Mc-Kinley and his advisers will not do this, then give Mr. Bryan a chance to deal with the situation in his way. That in doing so he will have due regard to the claims of humanity and justice as far as he can consistently with his sworn obligation to be faithful to the Constitution of the country we may not doubt. FIGHTING AGAINST QUAY

Pennsylvania Independents Hold an Enthusiastic Meeting.

Prominent Speakers Declare That Corrupt Machine Domination Must End in the Keystone State-Those Who Have Held the Commonwealth in Bondage Badly Frightened.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Oct. 29 .- The anti-Quay meeting here Saturday night was but also by the highly representative character of the speakers and audience. Seated on the stage of the Opera House, in which the meeting was held, were nearly one hundred merchants, manufacturers, and successful and intelligent farmers. Conspicuous among them were the three Honest Government Legislative candidates, Jason Sexton, H. H. Fetterolf, and Jesse Kriebel, the latter of whom some time ago indignantly refused the Quay proffer of the position of Oleo Inspector at a $3-a-day remuneration.

The enthusiasm was very pronounced and the addresses of the speakers, who included State Senator J. Bayard Henry, of Philadelphia; Charles Heber Clark, of the "Textile Record." and W. H. Maxwell, of Pottstown, were listened to with the most earnest attention and received with unstinted approval. The meeting was called to order by Isaac Richards, a well-known manufacturer.

The address of Senator Henry was an eloquent denunciation of Quayism and a thorough exposure of the methods by which it retains its hold upon the politics which it retains its hold upon the pointes and the public offices of Pennsylvania. The audience received with the utmost approbation his declaration that Quay and Quayism in this Commonwealth have had their day. The honor of the State, he continued, is in the keeping of its citizens, and the only way in which the gross vio lations perpetrated by the band of Quayites can be rebuked is for every voter, no matter to which party he may belong, to refuse to vote for any man for the Legislature who does not declare abs position to the re-election of Quay to United States Senate.

the United States Senate.
Senator Henry paid especial attention to the necessity of the voters exercising intelligent care in marking their ballots on election day. "Any man," he explained, "who has doubt as to how to mark his ballot can enquire of his neighbors, or he may secure full information at the polls."

He urged the independent voters to go from house to house, from farm to farm, and from factory to factory, and labor for the defeat of the Quay candidates for the Legislature. Continuing, he said:
"To strike down honest, faithful legislators like Jason Sexton and H. H. Pet-terolf, who as Republican members of the last Legislature did their full duty in re-sisting the bribes and demands of the corrupt Quay machine, is like striking down an honest banking official or trusted employe for doing his duty and saving your property in time of peril. Dunkards and Mennonites Afraid of Reosevelt.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Oct. 29.-Republicans are very much alarmed over the revolt among the Dunkards (German Baptist Brethren) and Mennonites against the war policy of the McKinley Administration, About eight out of ten of the people of these religious denominations are Republicans and they are very numerous in Washington, Frederick, and Carroll counties and the bordering counties in Pennties and the bordering counties in Penn-sylvania, Virginia, and West Virginia. In 1896 McKinley and Hobart got nearly their solid vote, but if McKinley and Rooseveit get one-half of it this year they will be lucky. In Washington county they have ten or twelve flourishing congrega-tions. There are probably 1,000 voters of these denominations in Washington county. In one of the northern districts of Washington county five or six Dunkards went to the registers of voters and asked them to strike off their names, saying they feared they would be subject to draft in McKinley's army. The registers told them they could not take off their names. The men, who are, or were, stanch Republicans, will either vote for Bryan or not vote at all.
